WILFRED LUCAS in the Triangle production "The Food Gamblers," plays the part of a Food Commissioner whose social conscience is not too sensitive to keep him from trading on the necessity of his fellows by price manipulations. Because he loves a girl, however, and because he himself comes face to face with starvation, his better nature is awakened and he wages a successful battle against his own colleagues for constructive legislation.

The starvation scene has a strange counterpart in Lucas' private life. Several years ago Lucas was riding horseback from Secora to Albuquerque, depending entirely on the larders of the natives along the road for his meals. A storm came up suddenly, a fury of wind and white alkali dust that blinded both Lucas and his horse completely.

Losing the main trail, the horse stumbled and threw his rider, and hours later Lucas awoke to find himself with a broken leg and a wounded horse, and the angry red eye of the setting sun just disappearing below the horizon.

For three days he struggled on, becoming fainter by the hour for lack of food. He forgot the pain of his injury, he says, in the frenzied craving for food and when he was finally discovered by an indolent Mexican and taken to his hut, he consumed all the beans in the house and begged for more. With the memory of such an adventure as a groundwork, it was not difficult for Lucas to "starve" in "The Food Gamblers."

Fanny Ward on Grand Screen.

"The Winning of Sally Temple," at the Grand today, is a dainty, frivolous story of romance and masquerade laid in the London of 1770. Although there are moments which seem to border on tragedy, the prevailing tone of the play is gay with an atmosphere of minuets, powdered hair and elaborate courtesies. The setting gives a contrast between the slums in Pump Lane, where Sally Temple lives and the palatial home of Lady Pamela, who induces the girl to change places with her to escape the wrath of her guardian. When the guardian arrives, he promptly falls in love with his pseudo ward, whom he believes to be the Lady Pamela and after many complications, the escapade ends in forgiveness for the real ward and wedding bells for Sally.

Fanny Ward as Sally Temple coquettes through the scenes with her usual Dresden China grace. Jack Dean is a distinguished figure as Lord Ramsey and the rest of the cast sustains the atmosphere of the piece with the assistance of excellent staging and direction.

The picturesque setting is particularly adapted to the style of this vivacious little actress.

"The Dark Road," at the Dixie today, introduces us to a war-time vampire who, under the circumstances is far deadlier than any ordinary variety of the species in times of peace. It is a brilliant character study of a beautiful but fiendish woman, who spends her time, while her husband is fighting at the front, in alluring young recruits from their post of duty and in carrying on clandestine affairs with foreign spies. A letter from her husband containing private military information is forced from her by her last lover, who uses it in his capacity as spy and brands her husband as a traitor. When her husband returns to murder her, she covers beside a huge picture of Cleopatra, which she has always identified with herself; the infuriated man throws a dagger which pierces the heart of the picture and at the shock, the modern Cleopatra falls dead. This manner of her taking-off may seem a bit fantastic, as does the extraordinary ease with which state secrets are communicated without benefit of censor, but the atmosphere of the situation is so skillfully created that it permits most impossible situations to be taken for granted. The remarkable beauty of the setting in an old English estate and the perfection of every detail of direction, compensates almost entirely for slight discrepancies in the plot.

Dorothy Dalton, as the perfidious heroine, is a most alluring combination of beauty and fiendish charm. Her support is literally perfect from the three men, who are in turn her victims, to the gray-haired curates, butlers, etc.

Big Attraction at Nelson.
"Hypocrites" is being shown at the

Nelson today and will undoubtedly attract large crowds. The picture was shown in this city at another house during the winter but dug, probably, to the almost prohibitive prices at which it was exhibited comparatively few enjoyed seeing it. The showing at the Nelson today places it in the popular class and within reach of all.

A brief prologue shows Gabriel as an ascetic monk of olden times, killed by an outraged people to whom he has dared present Truth, after consecrating himself with fasting and prayer. At the opening of the play itself, Gabriel is the minister of a modern church, denouncing his congregation of smug hypocrites, for their hypocrisy. Discouraged, he later sinks into a dream and sees himself as the monk of old, and accompanied by Truth, sees the persons in the drama as they are revealed in her mirror. This brief description gives little idea of the dramatic interest, fearlessness and beauty of the production of this play. "Hypocrites" is now on the screen as the latest Bosworth, Inc. release. Courtenay Foote's creation of "Gabriel" is a masterpiece. Highly original camera effects have been produced by the two cinematographers, Dal Clawson and George W. Hill. Triple and sextuple exposures are frequent and in two scenes the film passed through the camera eighteen and twenty-four times.

Last of "The Great Secret."

"The Gilded Youth," featuring Richard Bennett, Rhea Mitchell, George Fordat and a good cast is the headlined picture at the Princess today. The last chapter of "The Great Secret" is also shown.

"CLOSE-UPS"

—Regina Badet, the famous vampire of France, is seen on the American screen for the first time in "Atonement," at the Grand tomorrow. It is through the medium of the Brady International Service—World-Pictures that this famous French screen artist is presented in this country. By an arrangement recently completed Miss Badet will be seen in "Atonement" and other French artists will be seen in other productions of equal note.

—'Tis prophesied that all the world will be clodhopping after seeing the new dance which Charlie Ray has originated for the latest Triangle-Ince play in which he is starred.

—F. Hopkinson Smith's widely popular story, "A Kentucky Cinderella," has been translated to the screen by Bluebird photoplays and will soon be presented throughout the country by Rupert Julian. Ruth Clifford and all-star cast. Mr. Julian directed the production. Miss Clifford is declared to be the prettiest little Cinderella that ever descended from the original.

—Paramount Pictograph is an added attraction to the Grand program today.

TO REBUILD BURNED SCHOOL

CHARLESTON, June 21.—At a conference between the State Board of Regents and State Board of Control it was decided to reconstruct the recently burned building of the Keyser Preparatory school at once. While the building will be modernized inside, the outside walls probably will be erected on the old foundations if they are found to be sound. The old building cost $45,000 when built several years ago, but the cost of the new structure is expected to be considerably more.

LOCAL SOCIAL EVENTS

Strawberry Fete

A "berry Strawberry Fete" will be given by the Junior Christian Endeavor society of the Lutheran church tomorrow evening beginning at seven o'clock in the basement of the church on Gaston avenue. The Juniors will all be attired as "berries" and will serve strawberries, ice cream and strawberry short cake. The affair is under the direction of Mrs. Clarence Bloom. The public is invited to be present.

Afternoon Tea

Mrs. Husted Brownfield and Mrs. Clyde H. Neill entertained at an attractively appointed tea yesterday afternoon at the home of the former on Main street. About two hundred guests were received during the afternoon by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Brownfield's sister-in-law, Mrs. Allison Bartlett, who came here several months ago from Clarksburg to reside.

Assisting the hostesses in entertaining were Mrs. Harry B. Crane of Clarksburg; Mrs. John H. Hough, Mrs. Harry J. Hartley, Mrs. Clark Brownfield, Mrs. Thomas Hall, Mrs. C. E. Smith, the Misses Mary Ellen Henry, Pauline Jamison, Martha Hutchinson and Little Miss Mary Crane Hartley. Wedding Date Announced.

The marriage of Miss Diana Lloyd, formerly of this city, now of Johnstown, Pa., and Sherman Cone, also of Johnstown, whose engagement was announced here recently, will be solemnized on June 27 in the Welsh Baptist church at Johnstown, Pa. Mr. Cone and his bride will take an extended wedding journey to points on the Great Lakes after which they will reside in Johnstown. Miss Lloyd is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Lloyd.

At THE NELSON Today

HYPOCRITES

A rather complex plot that keeps the imagination constantly working to follow the author only adds to the value of this feature which is being shown the country over to full houses. The idle curious, or the fellow who just wants a place to rest will not care so much for a picture of this kind, but the lover of good pictures will find in this an abundance to admire.

TEACHER'S PETS

Napoleon the Great and Sally, His Mate, the two most highly trained monkeys in the world are given parts in a movie comedy that is rather funny. The antics of the animals are prominent in the picture.

TOMORROW: "Where Glory Waits" is a three reel drama with Allen Holubar who is also the director. Roberta Wilson also has an important role. "Summer Boarders" is the title of the comedy number in which Phil Dunham is starred. A weekly in which the bathing season is opened at Galveston, Tex. American day in London, and a number of the justly famous Hy Mayer cartoons are leading features.

Richard Barrett Kills
Entire Family

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 21.—Following a quarrel with his wife over money matters Richard Barrett, a well known athlete of Brooklyn, early today shot and killed his wife, his son Kilton, aged 4, a baby boy, Donald, 1½ years of age, and committed suicide by slashing his throat with a razor and shooting himself in the head. The woman and two boys died instantly.

Dublin Sinn Feiners
Still Making Trouble

(By Associated Press)
DUBLIN, June 21.—The Sinn Feiners, who have held several demonstrations since the release of persons arrested at the time of the uprising last year, brought about further disorder today. Some 500 of them carrying Sinn Feiner flags attacked the residences of former soldiers over which union jacks were flying. Windows were smashed and police who came up were stoned. Eight men and five women were arrested.

You Won't See the Same Thing Every Day In This Sale of White

New Quantities of Fresh Undermuslins Will Fill the Sale Tomorrow

There never was a White Sale that took so much hard thinking in the preparation. Some cotton yard goods have doubled in price in the past year or two. Good foreign embroideries are more and more difficult to get; laces are dearer, boxes and wrappings, labels and pins are dearer; manufacturers have found it harder to make concessions which for years they have been glad to make for the Hartley White Sale.

Yet, in spite of all these conditions, we believe this White Sale is the best in all our history.

In a word, it has been planned in every respect for people who want to lay in, at the smallest possible expenditure, supplies of undermuslins for the next six months.

- Nightgowns, cotton, 50c to $2.00.
- Petticoats, cotton, 50c to $5.00.
- Envelope Chemise, 50c to $3.00.
- Corset Covers, 25c to $1.00.
- Drawers, 25c to $1.00.
- Filipino Undergarments, $2 to $7.50.
- Silk Undergarments, $2.50 to $7.
- Modesty Petticoats, double panels, cotton, $1.00; silk, $3 to $5.
- Children's underclothes, 12½¢ to $1.50.
